Tunes ORdered Using Shape

To find a tune

Torus works by considering a tune as a sequence of jumps up or down in pitch, and using this sequence to find the tune in the index. So, consider the interval between the first two notes. If the tune jumps up then it's in the first half of the index, otherwise it's in the second half. Next consider the interval from the second note to the third. If the tune jumps up then it's in the first part of that half, otherwise it's in the second part. The next few jumps narrow the search down to a single page in the same way.

Within that page, if the next jump is up then the tune is above the >>>> divider, otherwise it's below it. The next few jumps narrow the search down to a single line. Within that line, if the next jump is up then the tune is before the || divider, otherwise it's after it. The next few jumps narrow the search down to a single tune (usually).

NB: Count two notes of the same pitch as a jump up. Ignore all notes before the first complete bar. Many tunes have several slightly different versions, and so may appear more than once in the index, but if in doubt try the least ornamented version first.

An example: Happy birthday to you. Ignoring the two notes on Happy, the first complete bar starts on birth. The tune jumps down from birth to day, so the tune's in the second half of the index. The tune then jumps up from day to to, so the tune's in the first part of this half. Continuing, the sequence of jumps is (Happy) birth- \ day / to \ you \ Hap- / py / birth- \ day / ...

This index contains 1638 versions of 1303 tunes with 1593 titles and 1568 references to 42 sources, and has 97.5% resolution. See the back page for a list of sources.
